

Elisa Cuellar Alvarado

Board Certified Internal Medicine Doctor

Elisa Cuellar Alvarado is an accomplished internal medicine physician renowned for her comprehensive approach to treating a broad spectrum of acute and chronic medical conditions, including diabetes, thyroid disorders, hypertension, and vestibular issues. Beyond her clinical expertise, she offers targeted treatments like weight management, arthritis therapies, PRP injections for aesthetic and functional purposes, and botox applications. Her patient care philosophy is deeply rooted in a holistic approach, emphasizing the importance of understanding each patient's unique health needs.

Since starting her private practice in 2008, Elisa C. Alvarado M.D. has maintained hospital admitting privileges at Huntington Memorial Hospital in Pasadena, California. In 2022, she assumed the role of Medical Director at Caring Partners Hospice in Glendale, a facility noted for its commitment to quality end-of-life care. She is duly certified by the American Board of Internal Medicine and holds both a California medical license and a DEA license.

Her academic record is distinguished. She graduated Summa Cum Laude from Texas A&M International University in 2001 with a bachelor's degree in biology and a minor in chemistry, consistently earning a place on the dean's list. The University of Texas Medical Branch conferred her medical degree in 2005, where she also completed her residency in internal medicine, eventually rising to the position of Co-Chief Medical Resident at Huntington Memorial Hospital.

Dr. Elisa has been actively involved in medical research, notably earning recognition for her work on Chagas Disease, which won her the "Best Family Medicine Research Poster" award at a university symposium. Her other significant research includes studies on the prevalence of STDs among Hispanic women, which highlight critical public health concerns.

In the medical community, Dr. Alvarado is a respected member of the American College of Physicians and has been involved in numerous educational and advocacy efforts, particularly concerning health issues affecting the Latino community. Her leadership roles in various medical and academic organizations reflect her commitment to advancing healthcare education and patient care.

Dr. Elisa Cuellar Alvarado is passionate about giving back to the community and actively supporting several non-profit organizations. Her interests include creative arts such as painting and crafting, which provide her with a peaceful retreat from her demanding professional life. She also enjoys traveling, culinary pursuits, and event planning, which allow her to explore her interests while enriching her family and community connections.