LONG BIO – Alyssa Reynoso-Morris is a queer Afro-Latinx/e Dominican and Puerto Rican storyteller. Her ability to weave compelling stories has opened many doors for her as an author, motivational speaker, and resume writer. She is also a mother and community organizer. During the day she works with community members, non-profit organizations, and government officials to make the world a better place.

Then she puts her writer's hat on to craft heartfelt stories about home, family, food, and the fun places she has been. Alyssa was born and raised in The Bronx, New York, and currently lives in Philadelphia, PA with her partner and daughter.

Alyssa served her community as the Chief of Staff for her local State Representative. Together they worked to bring funds to the district, pass legislation, and organize events to ensure constituents' needs are met.

Prior to this, Alyssa interned for Parvati Swayamrojaar, a microfinance organization working to break the poverty cycle in the slums of India, taught English at an orphanage in Tanzania, and facilitated the establishment of the Women's Witness Protection Program for the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda.

She also assembled a team of 70 volunteers that worked to build an aquaponic unit (a system that grows fish and crops without waste) and a water purification system in an under-resourced community in the Dominican Republic. Her team fundraised, wrote grants, and developed lesson plans focused on sustainable development.

As for her writing journey, she was awarded a Yuyi Morales Diversity and More Merit Scholarship in 2020 for the Craft and Business of Writing Children's Picture Books course offered through the Children's Book Academy. She earned a Las Musas Mentorship and an Editor-Writer Mentorship from The Word for picture books in 2020. She was also selected as a mentee through the PB Chat Mentorship program but withdrew due to being offered representation.

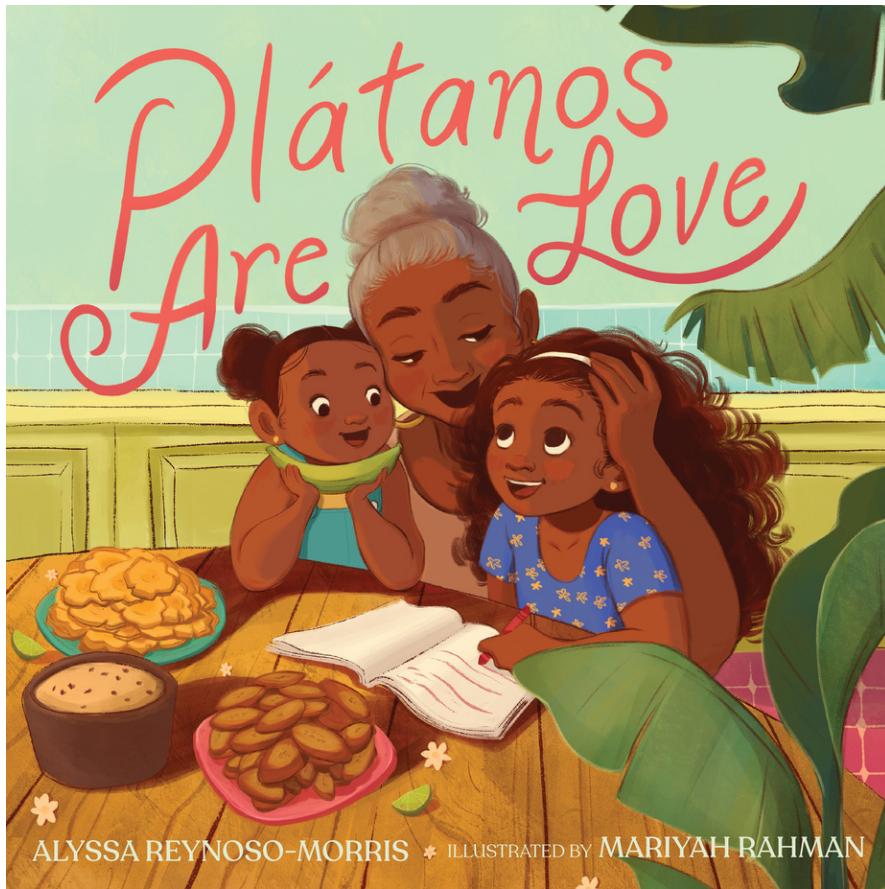

Alyssa's amazing agent is the talented Kaitlyn Leann Sanchez at Context Literary Agency. Alyssa is also an active member of the Society of Children's Book Writers and Illustrators (SCBWI).

Alyssa is honored to be a Musa with LAS MUSAS BOOKS. Their mission is to spotlight the contribution of Las Musas in the evolving canon of children's literature and celebrate the diversity of voice, experience, and power in our communities. Las Musas Books shares resources and invaluable information about the publishing industry through its website, podcast, and webinar series. They also offer a mentorship program that I was a part of; I'm excited to pay it forward and mentor a future Hermana.

Alyssa is also a member of KidLit In Color, which is a group of traditionally published BIPOC creatives. We nurture one another, amplify diverse voices, and advocate for equitable representation in the industry. Our work includes picture books, chapter books, and middle-grade fiction and nonfiction.

She hopes you enjoy her stories. Learn more at www.AlyssaAuthor.com

MY BOOKS!!! MIS LIBROS!!!

ALYSSA REYNOSO-MORRIS * ILLUSTRATED BY MARIYAH RAHMAN

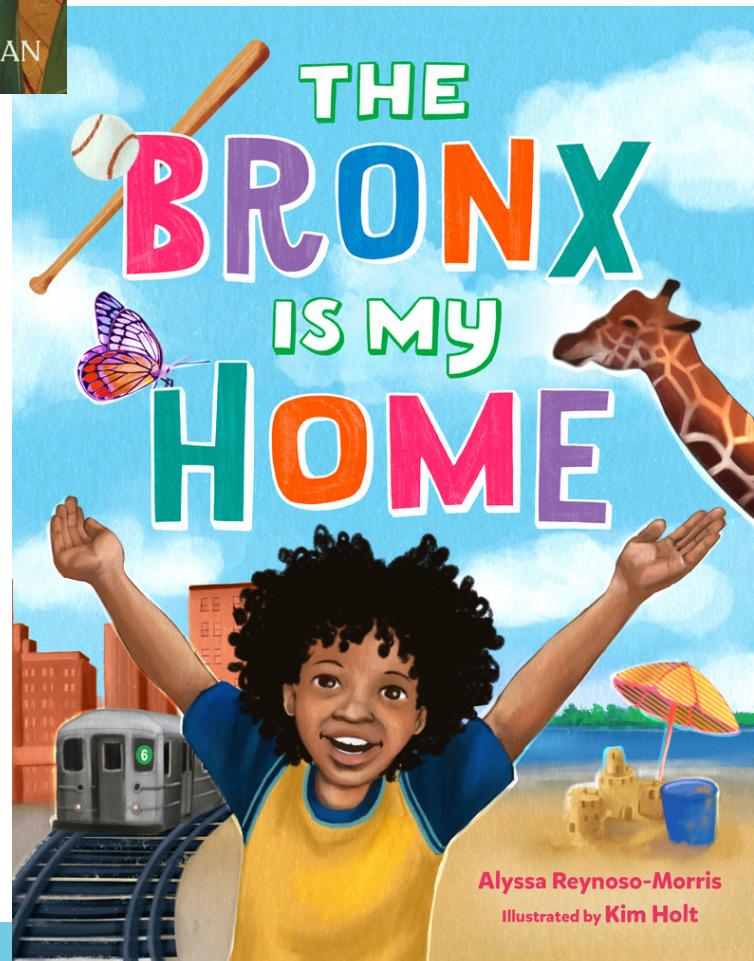

Welcome to The Bronx, New York! A picture book celebration of hometown pride including the history, landscape, cuisines, cultures, and activities unique to this vibrant community.

There's only one place where you can see bodegas and businesses bustling on every street, taste the most delicious empanadas in the world, smell the salty sea air of Pelham Bay, and pet horses at the Bronx Equestrian Center. From sunrise to sunset, Santiago and Mami have many treasures to enjoy in their neighborhood on a beautiful Saturday, including colorful birds on the Siwanoy Trail and fresh cannolis on Arthur Avenue.

A delicious picture book about the ways plantains shape Latinx culture, community, and family, told through a young girl's experiences in the kitchen with her abuela.

*Abuela says, "plátanos are love."
I thought they were food.
But Abuela says they feed us in more ways than one.*

With every pop of the tostones, mash of the mangú, and sizzle of the maduros, a little girl learns that plátanos are her history, they are her culture, and—most importantly—they are love.

PRAISE FOR PLÁTANOS ARE LOVE

Review

KIRKUS REVIEWS

An ode to a beloved comfort food is also a love letter to family ties... When Abuela reminds Esme that plátanos are love, the young narrator muses, "I thought they were food.

But Abuela says they feed us in more ways than one." ... Esme helps Abuela prepare several mouthwatering plátano dishes and hears more of their family history as they cook...

The tasty dishes of tostones, maduros, and mangú are prepared with love and shared with friends and family... Text that incorporates unitalicized Spanish throughout and warm and inviting illustrations convey affection for both food and family and will leave readers hungry for plátanos. Characters throughout the book read as Afro-Latine. A cozy story for the stomach and the soul.

I adored this beautiful, sweet story from Alyssa Reynoso-Morris and Mariyah Rahman. I loved the intergenerational story and the connection Esme shares with her Abuela. Food is at the center of many Latine families, and for us, plátanos are a connection to our past/ancestors and our present. I love how this book explores this in such a tender way. Kids (and their adults!) will love PLÁTANOS ARE LOVE, and it will be a wonderful addition to libraries everywhere.

-Alexandra Alessandri, Award-Winning Author

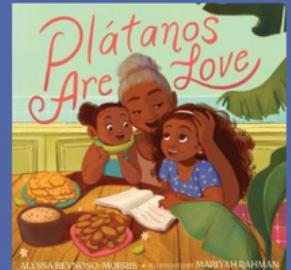

This book has everything I love. A lyrical intergenerational tale of food, familia, community, and connection. Reading it feels like home. The warm and luminous illustrations compliment Reynoso-Morris's rhythmic and seamless bilingual text. Plátanos ARE love. And if you don't know... now you know. :)

-Anika Aldamuy Denise, Award-Winning Author

PUBLISHERS WEEKLY

Review

Cooking plantains with Abuela, young Esme grows to appreciate her family lineage in this intergenerationally focused first-person tale, a double author and illustrator debut that incorporates English and Spanish throughout. Shopping at the market, Esme learns from Abuela that plátanos are more than just food: "They feed us in/ more ways than one." ... And Esme transcribes Abuela's recipes in a notebook while watching her grandmother cook various dishes with the ingredient, learning that their forbears weren't allowed to read, write, or draw. Rahman's digital illustrations use bright, warm colors for contemporary spreads and desaturated greens and browns to delineate scenes occurring in the past, contributing to a thoughtful story of legacy."

I must start by saying WOW!!!! Our faculty and students...all have been raving about your time here at AFS. You had all of the classes engaged, and spoke honestly. I so enjoyed working with you in the planning and the time spent together on campus. Your energy, optimism and passion for your work was wonderful and inspiring. We would love to have you back any time! - Sloane Waldman (She/Her/Hers), Director of Parent Engagement and Special Events at Abington Friends School

The Story of Self Training I attended led by Alyssa was a powerful experience for me as an instructor, scholar-activist, and educational trainer. I went in order to strengthen my storytelling and ability to move others to action on issues I care about deeply. I received that and more. Alyssa has coached me as I further develop my story and I am absolutely on fire! — Rochelle Peterson-Ansari, CEO of Perceptions Unlimited and Adjunct Professor of Education at Arcadia University
