Biography Of Jonathan Teller

Jonathan Teller is the CEO and guiding force behind eos Products, which he founded in 2007. Recognized for its commitment to enhancing Gen Z's beauty and skincare routines, eos has made a significant mark on the industry under his leadership. Teller's innovative approach centers on creating products that meet everyday needs and bring users joy and exceptional moments. The company is renowned for its products, including lip balms, hand creams, shaving creams, and body care, all available in major retail outlets.

Before establishing eos, Teller co-founded The Kind Group in 2006, a consumer product incubator for developing novel product concepts. His prior business experience includes leading Angry Elephant Capital LLC, a private investment firm with operations in New York and Shanghai. He managed a diverse portfolio of international real estate, private companies, and securities there, focusing mainly on markets in China and Southeast Asia.

Earlier in his career, Teller held significant positions at BusinessDevelopment.com, aiding venture fund portfolio companies in scaling their operations through strategic business development. He also served as an Operating Partner at Coast Intelligen, which manufactures power generation equipment.

Teller's professional journey began at Credit Suisse, where he ascended to positions such as Head of Business Planning and Strategy for the Global Fixed Income Division and, later, Vice President of Institutional Fixed Income Sales.

His commitment to the arts and emerging talent is evident through his past board membership at Ars Nova, a non-profit organization in New York dedicated to the development of new artists in theatre, comedy, and music.

Jonathan Teller graduated cum laude from New York University in 1991. He currently resides in New York City with his family. As the CEO of eos, Teller remains at the forefront of the beauty and skincare industry, continually pushing the boundaries to ensure eos products enrich the lives of its users.