

Greg Aloï Business Activities in Singapore

Greg Aloï Business activities are not limited to the production and distribution of different goods, but include services too.

For instance, a restaurant designs their own dishes (manufacturing), sells products such as cold drinks that are made by other businesses (merchandising), and provides services for customers (services).

Not every business is really successful enough to turn a profit, but the primary goal of them is to generate profits.

Greg Aloï Businessman As you will see in the next section, although all businesses aim to grow revenue, what the business actually does with that money can differ, depending on if they are a for-profit business or not.

Organizations like the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) provide some kind of test of profitability to determine if an individual or business is operating a claimed business.

Greg Aloia Singapore Businesses may earn profits through sales of goods and/or services, and profits are financial rewards derived from taking on the risks of running or owning a business.