Prasad Karmarkar's dedication to service extends beyond his professional pursuits. He actively partakes in various charitable activities, routinely making donations and volunteering his time. His contributions stem from his conviction that personal growth and transformation should also embrace the well-being of the broader community.

In his personal life, Prasad seeks tranquility and delight in activities that align with his inner self. He enjoys watching films, cycling, caring for pets, exploring culinary delights, and traveling. Each hobby presents a unique opportunity to interact with his environment and foster a profound connection with his inner being and the world.

Though Prasad's educational background in Interior Designing from a notable institution may seem at odds with his spiritual journey, he views them as interconnected. He reasons that, like curating spaces, personal transformation and healing require meticulous planning, comprehension of details, and cultivating a conducive environment for growth and positive shift.
