RHONDA G. REESE

LAW ENFORCEMENT CAREER COACH

THE CAREER COACH FOR LAW ENFORCEMENT!

Dr. Reese, a native of Annapolis, Maryland, and raised in Washington, DC, has an impressive educational background. She holds a Bachelor of Science in Criminal Justice from Old Dominion University, a Master of Science in Management from Johns Hopkins University, and a Doctor of Education in Organizational Leadership from Grand Canyon University. She also has certificates in Nonprofit Executive Management from Georgetown University and Howard University. As a retired FBI agent, Dr. Reese served in various roles during her 34-year career, including assignments in the Technical Services Division and the New York Office where she investigated foreign counterintelligence matters. She was later promoted to Special Agent and worked on drug-related cases in the Newark Field Division before being promoted to Supervisory Special Agent in the Criminal Investigative Division at FBI Headquarters.

Throughout her career, Dr. Reese held leadership roles in programs such as the Onboarding New Employees Program and the Professional Development Program. She has received numerous awards for her contributions to the field of law enforcement, including the FBI Director's Award for Equal Employment Opportunity and the Lloyd Sealy Award from NOBLE.

In addition to her professional achievements, Dr. Reese is a Diamond Life member of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc. and is actively involved in various community organizations. She is a sought-after international speaker on topics ranging from leadership development to active shooter preparedness. Dr. Reese is currently the CEO of the Rhonda M. Glover Group LLC, a coaching and mentoring firm specializing in law enforcement leadership development. She is also a certified career coach and EQi-2.0 administrator, helping individuals enhance their emotional intelligence skills for the workplace.
