DH 360°: Tools, Theories, and Applications in Digital Humanities

Date: 25.08.2025– 02.09.2025
Platform : Virtual

FDP OVERVIEW

DH 360°: Tools, Theories, and Applications in Digital Humanities is a seven-day international online FDP exploring the intersection of technology and the humanities. The programme offers a holistic view of DH—from core theories and concepts to practical applications and emerging trends. Sessions by global experts will cover text mining, digital archives, GIS mapping, data visualization, and AI in cultural research. Participants will gain hands-on experience with leading DH tools and methodologies. Ethical perspectives and critical debates in the field will also be addressed. Designed for educators, researchers, and scholars, this FDP fosters innovation in research and pedagogy.

By the end, participants will be equipped to integrate digital approaches into impactful humanities scholarship.
